Transforming the Frontier: Peace Parks and the Politics of Neoliberal Conservation in Southern Africa

Bram Büscher

Based on extensive research in southern Africa, Bram Büscher offers an original approach to conceptualizing the Social World of Coffee from Papua New Guinea. Büscher sheds new light on our understanding of environmental conservation and economic development projects by providing a truly brilliant critique of the intersection of conservation development and neoliberalization. He argues that modes of government in action are reframing environmental protection and sustainable development to fit an increasingly contradictory world order. By using a richly grounded empirical analysis, Büscher explains how the successful promotion of transfrontier conservation as a “win-win” solution happens not only in spite of troubling contradictions and problems, but indeed because of them.

Büschers argument is supported by decades of work on long-term, multilevel ethnographic research, making Transforming the Frontier an essential contribution to political ecology, conservation studies, and the critical analysis of neoliberalization. This book will appeal to a wide readership of anthropologists, Africanists, historians, geographers, and those interested in development and environmental studies.

Brams Büscher

The International Institute of Social Studies of Erasmus University Rotterdam in The Netherlands, and the Department of Geography, Environment and Energy Studies at the University of Johannesburg in South Africa.

Duke University Press

www.dukeupress.edu

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

Drawn to Improve: Governmentality, Development, and the Practice of Politics

Tania Murray Li

Transforming the Frontier

Peace Parks and the Politics of Neoliberal Conservation in Southern Africa

Bram Büscher

UCT Press cordially invite you to the launch of Transforming the Frontier: Peace Parks and the Politics of Neoliberal Conservation in Southern Africa.

SPEAKERS: Patrick Bond, Bram Buscher, Lorenzo Fioramonti

DATE Thursday, 18 July 2013
VENUE Ike’s Books, 48A Florida Road, Durban
TIME 17h30 for 18h00
RSVP cedric@adamsbooks.co.za
Cell: 082 873 2702

www.uctpress.co.za